Zip It!

by Gloria Keh

Mixed Media on canvas

24 inches x 36 inches

Year completed: 2019

Starting Bid: $500

Artist's Statement:

Imagine a world sans colors?
How dull that would be.

Colors play an important part in our lives. Colors affect the way we perceive things and circumstances. Undeniably, different colors affect the way we think and hence react to various situations.

Colors can certainly uplift our moods, and add oomph to our daily living. Even if someone insists that he or she only likes black and white, they still like colors. Because if one splits white light through a prism, one gets the seven colors of the rainbow. Mix all those colors up and we get black. So in black as well as in white, we have all colors.

Zip It is an abstraction.

And it is all about colors.

Colors that zip in and out of our lives.

The painting celebrates a plethora of lively colors that helps to add zest and increase energy.

The painting complements the theme of this event: as its cornucopia of vibrant, bright and cheerful colors are just perfect to COLOR ME HAPPY.

Now, we provide bespoke tours around our garden city, where passengers get to experience Singapore's sights, sounds and flavours up close and personal as our unique fleet of hand restored vintage vespa sidecars take them off the beaten track. We even managed to bag two Book of Records entries within the company's early stages, and proudly presented exclusive UNESCO World Heritage content.

You and a guest will embark on a 2 hour tour inspired by the movie Crazy Rich Asians based on the book by Kevin Kwan – a story set in Singapore featuring the lives of the insanely rich.

Throughout the ride you'll be travelling on Vespa sidecars, attached to vintage scooters many of which were made in Singapore pre-independence at the old Singapore Vespa Factory. You'll be exploring heritage, on a piece of heritage. Each sidecar comes with it's own trained driver, so all you have to do is sit back and enjoy the breeze.

Dragons in The Land of Smiles by Gloria Keh

Mixed Media on canvas

24 inches x 48 inches

Year completed: 2018

Starting Bid: $1,200

Artist's Statement:

I believe I am not alone when i say "I love Thailand." This beautiful country known for its natural and manmade attractions, tantalising cuisine and gracious hospitality, certainly has many charms.

Thailand is a land of colors. From its mountainous regions cloaked in verdant greens to its winding rivers and idyllic sun kissed beaches. From its rich cultural heritage steeped in tradition to its gleaming capital metropolis, and bustling cities, Thailand continues to fascinate and allure international travellers from far and wide.

This painting rendered in a contemporary vein, includes popular icons synonymous with Thailand, that's also known as The Land of Smiles. Colors are deep and auspiciously presented in an array of rich jewel tones. Reds however predominate. Prancing dragons come into play; with the lotus blossom, a popular flower in Thailand, reminding us of the need for universal peace.

The painting celebrates the vibrant and sumptuous colors of the Thai kingdom, where countless smiles accompany warm greetings of Sawadee (the Thai hello). With palms pressed together in a prayer like salutation at the heart center, in what the Thais refer to as 'wai'. All the components necessary to COLOR ME HAPPY.

Colour Me Happy

by Gloria Keh and CPAS School Students of Special Arts CCA

Mixed Media on canvas

Year completed: 2019

Starting Bid: $2,800

Artist's Statement:

This painting COLOUR ME HAPPY is not just a collaboration between CPAS and the artist Gloria Keh. It is a work from the heart. And in that very word 'heart', lies the art. (He-art). The painting features a background founded in shades of blue, and predominantly in blue, as blue is a colour synonymous with serenity, peace and above all healing.

There are three round paintings representing balloons. These were painted by three teenage students from the CPAS special school. The whole idea behind the balloons is that balloons are associated with happy events. Fun, parties, colours, joy - and the whole process supporting this painting was one of colours and happiness. The other important factor lies in the round shaped paintings. The circle is a very powerful symbol - it represents continuity, and hence, life. There is no beginning and no end. The circle denotes fairness and equality: think of King Arthur and the knights of The Round Table, where the king did not sit at the head of the table, but was equal with his knights. Think the round lazy susan of the typical Chinese dining table, where diners have easy access to sharing a meal.

Painting in a circle also helps with one's focus and without focus there can be no success in any endeavor.

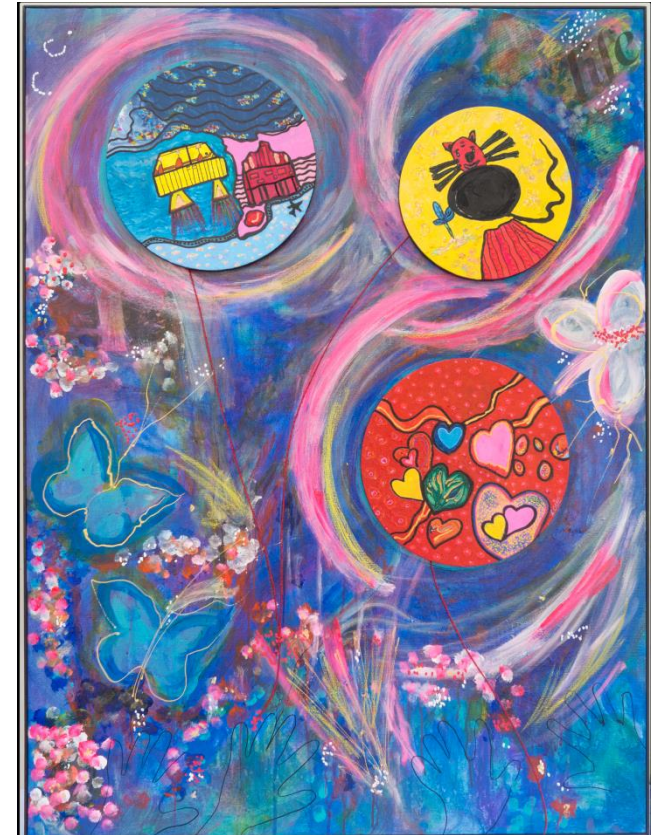

But these inspirations would not be complete without the hard work, hope, dedication and love poured into the three round paintings by the students.

Bryan Cheong certainly has an amazing imagination. His love for cars inspired him to create two vehicles; one that took to the sky and another being a sea faring submarine means of transport.

Mohamed Aiman, a very helpful chap, who has a penchant for yellow, preferred to paint his cat, that he loves very much.

Dang Yun Ying, a gentle young lady, loves red and the heart symbol. Her work is all about love and its life changing energy.

Butterflies dance into view: reminding us of the need for transformation. Through the process of this collaboration, some transformation took place. These three students have reached out to you through this painting, and with your support, you can help in this transformation. It has been a beautiful experience collaborating with Bryan, Aiman and Yun Ying on this painting. Indeed, this is a work of joy that comes from the heart with the hope to COLOUR ME HAPPY.

About Gloria Keh

The year was 1952, when Gloria Keh was born in the Chinese Year of The Dragon.

Her late father, Martin Fu, was an oil painter, who although never achieved fame, and died poor, enjoyed many rich experiences from his art and his love of classical music and European opera. Gloria was blessed to grow up in a household surrounded by art and music. Not only did her father paint a great deal, but her late elder brother had a passion for making watercolor paintings which were always of very serious looking Catholic saints. And mother would spend her leisure time coloring black and white comic books. But art is art, no matter what the subject may have been.

Because it was a difficult task making a living as an oil painter, her late father was forced to work in an advertising agency, as a commercial artist, in order to support his family. Gloria would also hang around her father, either in his office, or when he freelanced, working on graphic art, at home. She enjoyed watching him work, making art... Hence, she was exposed to commercial art and graphics from a very impressionable age. In addition, to subsidise her allowance, Gloria began peddling little artworks drawn and painted in poster colors, even before she was 10. She would sell her little drawings/paintings for $3 a pop, indeed a princely sum in those days for a child.

However, with the passage of time, Gloria entered the work force, taking on jobs in other fields of employment, that certainly afforded better monetary rewards than art. Sadly, art was to take a back seat for a long time, until 1996, when in Melbourne, Gloria began serious study in mandala art and symbolism. Her teacher, Georgina Fode of the Theosophical Society, played an important role in her development as an artist. Her study in mandala art and symbolism continued for a decade, following which, upon the blessings and request of her mandala teacher, Gloria began facilitating mandala workshops both in Melbourne and Singapore. She also undertook a short study course in art therapy.

Although she attributes her first art teacher to be her late father, Gloria studied oil painting under P. Gnana of Gnani Arts in Singapore. And acrylic painting under the watchful eye of her mentor, Gregory Burns.

Says Gloria: "As i age, i prefer the comforts and quiet of solitude. Painting provides me with a form of meditation, and i find inner peace and healing through my art."
